

SEDATIV

Sedativ band announces the release of an exceptional double album:

"Chaotic" / "Narcotic"

The albums "Chaotic" and "Narcotic" were released on October, 2020 and represent the debut of Sedativ on the international music market. Music is part of the electronic genre and it falls between genres approached by bands such as: The Prodigy, Crystal Method or Massive Attack.

The release could be listened to music platforms such as: Spotify, Tidal or iTunes.

Along with the double album, it was also released the video for the song "Mad", taken from the album "Narcotic", available on Youtube.

"Chaotic" & "Narcotic" are the debut sister albums, produced and mixed by Sedativ together with famous music engineers like: Neil McLellan (The Prodigy) , Miles Showell (Underworld, Disclosure, Faithless), Chris Bolster (Foo Fighters, Maroon 5) and Jon Burton (The Prodigy). Punchy and well balanced in terms of bass pressure this album is built for the live stage, bringing the band's unique sound and energy in the middle of the crowd.

Due to the style of the music they are composing and the approach to the live performance, SEDATIV is located on a niche segment that is hard to define in terms of musical genre. Mostly the band scores in the electronic / syntrock area, breakbeat self-defining electrofusion.

SEDATIV was formed on April 10, 2004 in Ploiești, Romania and began to tackle ethno rock alternately following a route that materialized in approximately 60 live appearances. After a pause of about 10 years, SEDATIV returns in 2017 with alternate rock inflections, hip-hop, drum'n bass, trip-hop and break beat elements, with a unique sound recipe.

SEDATIV is:

LETHAL X – vocalist

WEISSMAN – Bass

WRAY – synths

XJ MAGA – drums
